1400: From the Vault: Podcaster's website ; Underwriter website This week on From The Vault we present American poet Jack Spicer, one of the main drivers behind the San Francisco Renaissance, a poetry and creative explosion that happened in this California city in the 1950's. Thanks to the efforts of poets like Jack Spicer, Kenneth Rexroth, Madelaine Glaser, Robert Duncan, Robert Creeley, philosopher Alan Watts as well as Beat legends Allen Ginsberg, Lawrence Ferlinghetti, Michael McClure, Gary Snyder, and Jack Kerouac, San Francisco became the epicenter of a creative and intellectual explosion that would influence generations of artists and scholars. 1500: Progressive Spirit: Podcaster's website ; Underwriter website It is now 16 years after the events of September 11th, 2001 that have changed the world. I am in the midst of a series of interviews with 9/11 skeptics and scholars. These are sober scientists who refuse to be bullied and who present their case with analysis of the evidence. I have spoken already with psychotherapist, Frances Shure, who is writing a series of articles entitled, "Why Good People Become Silent or Worse About 9/11." I have also spoken with David Ray Griffin, sometimes called the grandfather of the 9/11 truth movement, about his latest book, "Bush and Cheney: How They Ruined America and the World." Interviews forthcoming are with Graham MacQueen who exposed the 2001 anthrax hoax in his book, "The 2001 Anthrax Deception: The Case for a Domestic Conspiracy." Dr MacQueen is a retired professor in the Religious Studies Department at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. He is a member of the 9/11 Consensus Panel along with Frances Shure and David Ray Griffin. Also, I will speak with Dr. Leroy Hulseley, Chair of University of Alaska Fairbanks Civil and Environmental Engineering Department, who this week released a draft report of the science behind the collapse of World Trade Center Tower 7. Today I speak with Dr. Niels Harrit, Associate Professor of Chemistry at the Nano-Science Center, University of Copenhagen; first author of "Active Thermite Material Observed in Dust from the 9/11 World Trade Center Catastrophe published in the Open Chemical Physics Journal" in 2009. We discuss the thermite, thermate, and nanothermite discovered in the dust of the World Trade Center towers, his evaluation of the reports released by National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), and the work of the 9/11 Consensus Panel. Niels Harrit, PhD., was born in 1945. Since 1971, he has been associate professor at University of Copenhagen. He retired from the position in 2009 and is now emeritus. Thus, he has been a researcher and teacher in the Department of Chemistry for more than forty years and has published more than 60 peer-reviewed papers in the best scientific journals. The latest publications are about time-resolved X-ray spectroscopy of ultra-fast photochemical processes and multidimensional fluorescence spectroscopy. Since 2007 he has been actively involved in the global movement for 911-truth, demanding an independent investigation of the terror attacks on September 11th, 2001. He was the leading author of a scientific paper, published in April, 2009, describing the findings of active thermite material in the dust from the collapses of the three (!) skyscrapers of World Trade Center. He is member of the 911-consensus panel (<http://www.consensus911.org/>). Over the years, Dr. Harrit has given more than 330 presentations on the collapses of the World Trade Center skyscrapers in Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Germany, Holland, France, Switzerland, Spain, United Kingdom, Canada, USA, China, Australia, Russia and Iceland. 2000: From the Vault: Podcaster's website ; Underwriter website This Week on From the Vault we honor one of the great visionary thinkers of our time Edward Said. Edward Said was born in Jerusalem in 1935. His father was an American Citizen of Christian Protestant Palestinian origins. Said's family moved to the United States when he was in High School and he would go on to earn a bachelor's degree at Princeton University and a masters and PhD in English Literature at Harvard University. Edward Said became Professor of Comparative Literature at Columbia University in 1963, where he would teach until his death on September 25th, 2003. Edward Said would use his dual heritage to help bridge the gap between the West and the Middle East and to improve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict with his acute and sober analysis. Today we will present selections from The Pacifica Radio Archive's 30 years of recordings with Dr. Said. But first we present a special edition of KPDK's Uprising radio program with Host Sonali Kolhatkar and her special guest, Alternative Radio's David Barsamian. Together they honor Dr. Edward Said the day after his death. That was Kpdk's Uprising radio show host Sonali Kolhatkar interviewing Alternative Radio's David Barsamian. This program was recorded on September 26th 2003, the day following the death of Dr. Edward Said. Next we will hear an excerpt from one of the early recordings of Dr. Said. On the 5 year Anniversary of the June 10th, 1967 6-day War in the Middle East, Dr Edward Said sat down with WBAI producers to discuss the current situations between the Palestinians and The Israeli's. The formation of the modern state of Israel in 1948 was followed by the formation of United Nations refugee camps for displaced Arabs. Between September 16th and 18th 1982, two of these camps, Sabra and Shatilla, were surrounded by Israeli Troops while Lebanese militia murdered roughly 2000 civilian men women and children. The next day Edward Said spoke out against the inhumanity of this slaughter. And finally on February 20th, 2003 just a few months before his death, Edward Said would give one of his last speeches before a packed house on the campus of UCLA in Los Angeles. Archive 11-10-2011
